

Renos Papadopoulos

Professor and Director, Centre for Trauma, Asylum and Refugees, Department of Psychosocial and Psychoanalytic Studies, University of Essex, UK

Renos K. Papadopoulos, Ph.D. is Professor in the Department of Psychosocial and Psychoanalytic Studies, Director of the 'Centre for Trauma, Asylum and Refugees' and of the postgraduate programmes in 'Refugee Care', a member of the 'Human Rights Centre', at the University of Essex, as well as Honorary Clinical Psychologist and Systemic Family Psychotherapist at the Tavistock Clinic. He is a practising Clinical Psychologist, Family Therapist and Jungian Psychoanalyst who spent most of his professional life training and supervising specialists in these three spheres. As consultant to the UN and other organisations, he has been working with refugees, tortured persons, trafficked people, and other survivors of political violence and disasters in many countries. His writings have appeared in eighteen languages. Recently, he has been given Awards by the European Family Therapy Association (for Lifetime 'Outstanding contribution to the field of Family Therapy and Systemic Practice'), by the University of Essex (for the best 'International Research Impact'), by two Mexican Foundations (for his 'exceptional work with vulnerable children and families in Mexico'), and by the International Association for Jungian Studies (for his lifetime contribution to Jungian studies). His last two books are on 'Moral Injury' and on 'Involuntary Dislocation'. In particular, the one on 'Involuntary Dislocation' has been receiving remarkably positive reviews and hailed as a genuine milestone in the field, inaugurating a new paradigm.
